Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Report of Board of Officers: To Consider an Expedition for the Relief of Lieut. Greely and Party A deposit consisting of two hundred and fifty rations was left in 1875 at Cape Collinson, at an estimated distance from Lieutenant Greely's station of one hundred and thirty-seven miles. The same expedition left a depot at Cape Hawks, fifty miles further to the southward, consisting of bread, pickles, and preserved potatoes; this cache was examined by Greely while en-route to his destination. A deposit of two hundred and forty rations was also made by Nares near Cape Sabine, another at Cape Morton, and about one hundred and fifty pounds of meat at Cape Isabella, but these stores were not examined by Greely, neither did he see those at Cape Collinson. While en-route to his station, Greely made a deposit of two hundred and twenty-five bread and meat rations at Carl Ritter Bay, seventy-five miles south of Lady Franklin Bay. He also deposited six and one-half tons of coal at Littleton Island, and knew that at the Ca Islands were 1,800 rations left by Nares in 1875. At Lincoln Bay Nares also left a large depot; but these stores would be available only for exploring parties operating to the northward of Discovery Harbor. It is well known that the supply expedition sent out by the War Department in 1882, found the entrance to Smith Sound blocked by ice, and the vessel was unable to communicate with the Signal station. A deposit of two hundred and fifty rations, a small quantity of fuel, together with a boat, was, however, made near Cape Sabine. A boat was also...
