THE YELLOWSTONE EXPEDITION OF 1873. Extracts from Letters written by General Custer to Ms Wife during Vie Ex peditUm to the Yellowstone in 1873. Many of the letters from which the following extracts are taken are very long, but so much of them is of a personal nature that I have sought here to give only those portions that convey au idea of the camp-life and daily experiences of a campaign on the frontier. I regret that I have not the letters giving an account of the Indian fights. I have substituted a copy of General Custers official report to complete the etory of the summer of 1873. --E. B. C. J Camp on Heart River, D. T. , June 46, 1S73. When I may have an opportunity to send this, or when it may reach you, I cannot tell; but I will have it ready, and when the first courier leaves he shall carry these tidings to you. This is our sixth day out from Fort Rice. We reached this river yesterday about noon, and are remaining in camp to-day as it is somewhere in this locality that we expect to find the railroad engineers, and Lieut. D and four companies of infantry that left Fort Rice before you did. Our march has been perfectly delightful thus far. We have encountered no Indians, although yesterday we saw the fresh tracks of about fifteen ponies, showing that they are in our vicinity. I...
